Editorial.

In order to lay before our readers a most interesting account of the battle of Gravelotte on the 18th August, we have deferred our usual editorial.

Battle of Gravelotte.

DETAILED ACCOUNT—GHASTLY SCENES OF CARNAGE.

NEW YORK, August 24th.

Following is a detailed account of Thursday's battle at Gravelotte, which was received this morning in London from our special, who witnessed the battle at head-quarters and stood by the side of Bismarck and the King. The first realisation they had at Pauchien, where they found themselves on the 17th, of the extent to which fighting had been going on on Tuesday and Sunday last at the front, was the coming in of the wounded. At first it was thought they had been wounded in skirmishes, but on the 16th there were signs of the work being warm. On that evening, soldiers with ghastly wounds walked about the market place in Pont-a-Mousson, surrounded by eager groups of their newly arrived comrades. This told a story of disaster. Poor fellows! it surely was galling to them to be borne away, as they had been, from the field without having hardly any result. I stood among these troops, and the narrations of the men all amounted to their having been to confront a much larger force than their own, and that their division had been cut up. I was struck by the fact, that though there was some dissatisfaction suggested by their tone of voice, I heard no word uttered, by the narrators or listeners, which accused anyone. They dwelt rather on the fact that they had dealt a heavy blow on the 14th and that though the Tenth Division had as an available organisation been demolished, it had sold its life dearly. On the 17th the wounded from the preceding day began to pour into Pont-a-Mousson. They were brought in on a long line of grain carts, lying upon hay. From my window, which overlooked the main street and commanded a view of the market place I counted 90 carts, each holding an average of ten men. It was strange to see them as they passed amid files of French, unable to conceal their joy, on one hand, and the Prussian soldiers on the other side. The streets began swarming with other wagons, all the wounded being the wearers of the red trousers; and now an then came a batch of unwounded prisoners. At length came a carriage with a French general. It was followed by a vast crowd of French, and for a little time it seemed as if there might be a collision between the inhabitants and Prussians so earnest were the demonstrations of the people. But it was now at last evident that the struggle was very serious at the front. At midnight or a little after on the 17th all the trumpets for miles began to sound. This was the first time we had been started by such wild music. Trumpet answered to trumpet through the little city. For several days previously there had been almost perpetual marching of troops through the streets, but now they tramp through every street and by-way, making between midnight a dawn a perpetual roar. Hastily dressing, I had out into the dark and managed to get a seat on a wagon going in the direction of the Front, which was now understood to be one or two miles beyond the village of Gorze, some miles from Pont-a-Mousson. On our way we met considerable batches of French prisoners, who were looked upon with curiosity by the continuous line of German soldiers with whom we advanced; but only one or two offensive cries towards prisoners could be heard. The way was so blockaded with wagons that I finally concluded that I could do the remaining six or seven miles on foot, so I got off the carriage and began to walk and run swiftly ahead. At Montoisantien, on the Moselle, about half way to Metz, I found vast bodies of cavalry, Uhlans and hussars, crossing the river by a pontoon bridge, and hurrying at the top of their speed towards Gorze. Hurrying my own steps I heard the first thunder of cannon, seemingly coming from the heart of a range of hills on the right.

ARRIVAL ON THE BATTLE FIELD—SCENE OF CONFLICT.

Passing through the village and ascending a hight plain beyond I found myself on a battle-field strewn, as far as the eye could reach, with dead bodies. In one or two parts of the field companies were still seen burying the dead, chiefly Prussians. The French, being necessarily buried last, were still lying in vast numbers on the ground. A few of those I saw were not dead; as I hurried on a splendid regiment of cavalry came on behind and when they reached the brow of the hill, they all broke out with a wild hurrah and dashed forward. A few more steps and I gained the summit and saw the scene which had evoked their cry, and seemed to thrill even their horses. It would be difficult to imagine a grander battle field. From the hill to which I had been directed by good authority to come the entire sweep of the Prussian and French centres could be seen and a considerable part of their wings. The spot where I stood was fearful. It was amid ghastly corpses and burdened with stench of dead horses, of which there were great numbers. I was standing on the battle field of the 16th. On the left, stretched like a silver thread, lay the road to Verdun and to Paris. It ran between lines of poplars, which stood against the horizon. On my left, as far as the eye could reach toward Metz, with military regularity, strung on this road like beads, were the pretty villages each with its church-tower which, although they have separate names are really only a few hundred yards apart. They are Mars-la-Tour, Flavigdi, and a little south of the road Vionoetti, Rezonville, and Gravelotte, which is divided into Great and Little Gravelotte. On my right were the thickly wooded hill, behind which lies the most important village of the neighborhood. The The one I just left viz: Gorzee and its environs, was the foreground of the battle which should [not?] be called the battle of Gravelotte, for it was mainly over and beyond that devoted town that it raged. The area I have indicated is perhaps four miles square. Owing to have come on foot rather than along the road. I arrived just as the battle waxed warm—that is about noon of the 18th. At that time the King of Prussia was standing on the ground watching the conflict which had just begun. Among them I recognised the King, Bismark, Gen. Von Moltke, Prince Frederick Charles, Prince Carl, Prince Albert, Adjutant Kronsky, and Lieut Gen. Sheridan, U. S. A. was also present. At this time the French were making the most desperate efforts to hold on to the last bit of the Verdun road that lies between Rezonville and Gravelotte, or that part of Gravelotte which in some maps is called "St. Mariol." Desparate, but unavailing, for every man in the French ranks had two to cope with, and their line was already beginning to waver.

FRENCH CHANGE OF POSITION—CHANGE OF BATTLE FIELD.

Soon it was plain that this wing of the French, right was withdrawing to a new position. This was swiftly taken up under cover of a continuous fire [of their artillery from the heights beyond the village. The movement was made in good order, and the position was reached at 1.30. I believe nine military men out of ten would have pronounced it impregnable. When once this movement had been affected, the French retreated from this pressure of the Prussian artillery fire, the Prussians as rapidly advancing. The battle-field was no longer at Rezonville but had been transferred and pushed forward to Gravelotte, the junction of the two branching roads to Verdun. The fields in front of that village were completely covered by Prussian reserves, and over it interminable lines of soldiers were marching in the wood, disappearing into the village. This part of the battle-field was more extensive than the first, and brought the opposing forces into fearful close quarters. A peculiarity of it is that it consists of two heights intersected by a deep ravine; this woody ravine is over one hundred feet deep, and at the top some 300 yards wide. The side of the chasm next to Gravelotte, where the Prussians stood, is much lower than the other side, which gradually ascended to a great height. From their commanding eminence the French held their enemies fairly beneath them and poured upon them a scorching fire.

PLAYING OF ARTILLERY—A GRAND SIGHT.

The French guns were in a position far up by the Metz road, hidden and covered among the trees. There was not an instant's cessation of the roar of artillery. Distinguishable among was the curious grunting roll of the mitrailleuse. The Prussian artillery was posted up the north side, being necessarily raised for an awkward half-verticle fire. The French stood their ground and died by hundreds, and I had almost said by thousands. This lasted for an hour or two, which seemed ages, so constant was the slaughter. The hill where I stood commanded chiefly the conflict behind the village and to the north of it. The Prussian reinforcements coming up on their right, filed out of the Bois d'Agueus, and it was at that point, as they marched on the field, that I could perhaps get the best idea of the magnitude of this invading army now in the heart of France. There was no break whatever for four hours in the march of the men out of that wood. It seemed almost as if all the killed and wounded revived and came back, and marched forth again. "Burnam Wood advancing to Dunsinane," was not more an ominous sight to Macbeth than these men of Gen. Goeben's army, shielded as they were by the woods until they were fairly within range and reach of their enemies. So the French must have felt, for between four and five o'clock they concentrated upon that spot their heaviest fire, massing all their available guns, and shelling the woods which covered the Prussians unremittingly; their shot reached the Prussian lines, and then tore through them, and though the men were steady it was a trial to which no general could long subject his troops. They presently swerved a little from that line of advance, and there was no longer a continuous column of infantry pouring out of those woods. The attack of the Prussians in the center was clearly checked. About five o'clock, however, another brigade of fresh infantry was again formed in the wood, and emerged from its cover. Once out from under the trees they advanced at quick time. I watched the movement, for the French guns had not lost the range of the wood nor of the ground in front. Seen at a distance through a powerful glass the brigade was like a huge serpent, beginning with the undulation of the field, but it left a dark track behind it, and the glass resolved the dark track into falling and dying men. As the horrid significance of that path so traced came upon me, I gazed on more intently. Many of those who had fallen leaped up again and ran forward a little way, striving to go on with their comrades. Of those who fell backward instead of forward there were a few, though many fell as they painfully endeavored to follow the advance.

I do not know whether after the vain movement of that brigade, another movement was attempted from the road, but half an hour afterwards great numbers of troops began to march over the hill where I was standing, and moved forward toward the field where so hard a struggle had been so long protracted. These were, I think, a portion of Gen. Goeben's troops who had been directed on a direct route. The conflict from this point on the Prussians left became so fierce it was soon almost lost. Now and then a thick cloud would open a little and drift away on the wind and then we could see the French. I tried to get a better view of this part of the field. I went forward about half a mile and from my new stand, found myself not far from Almazon. The French line was still unbroken and to all appearances they were having the best of the battle; but this appearance was due, perhaps, that the French were visible on their broad heighth and fighting with such obstinacy that they plainly silenced a Prussian battery now and then. But the Prussian line was also strengthened by degrees. On the northern point infantry and artillery were brought up, and from far in the rear away seemingly in the direction of Thionville shot and shell reached the French ranks. These were the men and guns of Steinmetz, who formed a junction with the army of Prince Fredrick Charles, and completed the investment of Metz to the northwest. With the reinforcements that continually arrived on both sides, the battle grew more and more obstinate. There could be no doubt the French understood the meaning of the new movements of the Prussians and of the gradual development of the line to the north of Metz, and that they were able to extend their line gradually further and further, until the French were out-flanked and began to be threatened, as it appeared, with an attack on the rear of their extreme right. So long as the smoke from the Prussian guns hovered only over their front, the French clung to their position. The distance from the head-quarters where the Prussian flank attack stretched forward was great, and to add to the difficulty of seeing the progress of the battle, darkness came on.

THE FRENCH GIVE WAY.

I know not how long the French held out, nor at what precise moment the Prussian onset became irresistible. What I saw was this: the puffs of smoke from the French guns, with flashes brightning as the darkness increased, receded as the very thick pillar of cloud and flame from the north gradually and steadily approached; and with that advance the fire every moment became more slack. It was not far from 9 o'clock when the ground was yielded finally on the north. The last shots fired on that terrible evening were heard in that direction.

INCONVENIENCE OF WAR.—A Paris letter of July 22nd, says: The drain for men produces numerous petty inconveniences. Four hundred coachmen have been called from the cab ranks to join the ranks of the army on the Rhine. Many hundreds of waiters have disappeared from the cafes and restaurants, and those who remain seem to be aware that they remain masters of the situation. Vincenns is left with a garrison of 17 men. A corporal's guard does duty at the casernes. One sergant de ville is ubiquitous at another post where an entire regiment was considered none too much. From all points men on furlough are being recalled to rejoin their corps. Trains are delayed for their conveyance. On the Eastern Railway the day service has been stopped for ordinary passengers, who must go by one or two night trains to the frontier towns, or not at all. The Company has announced this forced interruption of the regular services, and its cause. The directions of the other railway companies declare themselves on longer responsible for punctuality of departures or arrivals, M. M. les militaires avant tout.

A Berlin professor has found out that all children are born with blue eyes; the darker hues come later.

MAGIC SOAP.

Directions for Using Robinson's Magic Soap for doing a Large Family Washing in Two Hours, of Five or Six Dozen Pieces.

1. Cut up fine a bar of the Soap, and put one-half of it into your boiler with sufficient water to cover well your white clothes to be washed, and let the Soap dissolve; then put your clothes in, stirring them, and let them just come to a boil; then pour out clothes and water into a tub and let them soak twenty or thirty minutes, stirring them round in the tub occasionally to loosen the dirt. Such articles as collars, wristbands or any article very dirty, should be rubbed through the hands a little while soaking in order to thoroughly loosen the dirt before boiling.

2. While your clothes are soaking put the other half of your cut Soap into your boiler, with sufficient clean water to boil, and let it be heating. After your clothes have soaked wring them out well and put into your boiling water, and let boil from 5 to 10 minutes; then rinse, blue and hang out to dry. If the above directions are followed, we will guarantee your clothes clean and white.

3. For your colored and woollen clothes use the same water you soaked and boil your white clothes with, only heating it up again, and pour it over your colored and woollen clothes, and let soak the same as your white clothes, also rubbing them through your hands while soaking, if very dirty. Then rinse in clear water, warm as your hands will bear, and you will thus accomplish a large washing in two hours.

By cutting up a bar of this Soap into two gallons water, and let boil until thoroughly dissolved, and then leave to cool, you will have two gallons of beautiful SOFT SOAP, as good as Common Soap for general house purposes.

Kootenay.

From a private letter received yesterday from Kootenay, dated 13th August, via Walla Walla, we learn the following later mining news which is reliable:

WILD HORSE CREEK.—The mining prospects on this creek are not good. There is about one hundred Chinamen and thirty white men at work, most of them are making but small wages, and but few exceeding the regular wages of $6 per day.

PERRY CREEK.—On this creek there is a few claims working with varied success. One company bottomed a good prospect of $37, but so far they have failed to strike a regular pay streak, and consequently only a few claims have paid for working.

THE MOYIE.—On this stream there is about fifteen Chinamen making small wages.

WEAVER CREEK.—On this creek George Weaver has established a hydraulic, and is said to be developing some good ground. The Horse Ranch on Palmer's Bar was discovered last year by Palmer and has only been partly prospected. The want of water will prevent its being fully prospected this fall. There is a great difference of opinion as to the extent and richness of the diggings. Our correspondent complains bitterly of the manner in which the settlers in that part of the country are treated by the Government. He says: "Our condition, so far as the Government is concerned, is not to be envied. Since Mr. Ball left here last year we have had no court for the collection of debts. The gentlemen who are here representing the Government, do all in their power, but what the people want is residents Gold Commissioner."

THE VICTORIA PACKET.—Some years ago the schooner Victoria Packet started from Nanaimo for Victoria, with a load of coal. The crew consisted of three white men, who were murdered by the Indians, and the vessel sunk at Cowichan Gap. The Government never offered a reward for the murderers of these men, or else they would have been brought to justice, as they are known, so we are informed, to parties in this city. About a year after this murder a farmer named Curtis, on Salt Spring Island, was found shot, in his house, and in both these cases the guilty parties, as yet, have gone unpunished. No doubt if there was a reward offered by the Government for the conviction of these Indians the guilty parties would soon be ferreted out, and made to pay the penalty of the law for their crimes.

PUGET SOUND ITEMS.—The Tacoma saw mill is shut down for repairs. A rich lead of silver ore has been struck on the Sultan river, a short distance from Seattle. The bark Carlotta which was wrecked on Ducan rock, near Cape Flattery, a short time since, has been towed by the U. S. Revenue Cutter Lincoln to Seabeck, where she will be repaired. A man named John Silby while at work on a lumber pile at Port Madison Mills, last week, was accidentally struck by a heavy plank, which broke his leg.

THE TOMBOLA.—Yesterday the office of Mr. Passerard, the secretary of the French Society, was crowded all the day with ladies and gentlemen, who held tickets and did not get their prizes the previous day. Some of the prizes were valuable; none of them worth less than 50 cents. Every person who had any interest in the tombola seemed perfectly satisfied with the way in which it was conducted.

THE EXTRADITION TREATY.—Sheriff Carson, from Washington Territory, arrived here on the Eliza Anderson, with a requisition from the Governor of Washington Territory to Governor Musgrave, asking him to deliver up a man who is in this colony at the present time, and accused of killing a man on Puget Sound, about one year ago. He had been in the Stellacoom gaol and broke out some time ago. Mr. Carson went up on the Enterprise yesterday morning, to see the Governor.

THE ISABEL.—Messrs. Starr Bros., the owners of the steamer Alida, have made arrangements with the owners of the steamer Isabel to run that steamer from Port Townsend to Victoria, in connection with the Alida. If the Government here will give a small subsidy to Messrs. Starr Bros., the steamer will make two trips a week to and from Port Townsend, instead of one.

AUCTION.—The trade sale of wines, groceries, liquors, sugars, case goods, lamp chimnies, percussion caps, seidletz and other powders, will take place at the salesrooms of J. P. Davies & Co., this day, at 11 a. m., on a liberal credit. The sale will commence with wines and liquors, among which will be some heavy superfine old port and sherries.

A QUICK TRIP.—The H. B. Co.'s bark Princess Royal arrived at San Francisco yesterday morning, five days from Victoria—one of the quickest passages on record for a sailing vessel. She left Victoria last Wednesday evening and was seen near Cape Flattery by the brig Byzantium, on Thursday afternoon.

CEDAR HILL.—Specimens of the quartz from the Discovery company's ledge were sent up to the Government Assay Office, at New Westminster for assay. We understand that a company is about to be formed for the purpose of running a tunnel to thoroughly prospect the lead.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.—The bark Adele, Capt. Friend, arrived in Royal Roads yesterday afternoon, 29 days from San Francisco, in ballast, bound to Muir & Co.'s sawmill, at Sooke for a cargo of lumber.

NOMINATION.—At a meeting of the Union Hook & Ladder Co., held last night, Simeon Duck was nominated for Chief Engineer of the Victoria Fire Department for the ensuing year and Frank Richards for assistant.

RETURNED.—Dr. Mills Bowden has returned from the Mainland, and is now at his office on Government street, where he can be seen at all hours of the day.

COUNTY COURT.—Farron vs. Larkin: this was an action brought by the defendant for the sum of $100 for money lent in Cariboo several years ago. The defendant denied the indebtness and pleaded the "statue of Limitation." The case occupied the whole day. Mr. McCreight appeared for the defendant, and Mr. Drake for the plaintiff. The court adjourned until 11 o'clock, this morning, when some important cases will come up for adjudication.

FOR PUGET SOUND.—The steamers Eliza Anderson and Alida left this morning, at 2 o'clock, for Puget Sound, with a large number of passengers each. The fare on the Alida is only two dollars, and fifty cents to Port Townsend. It is cheaper to travel on the Alida than to live on shore.

ASSAULT.—James Butler was charged in the Police Court yesterday morning with assaulting a man named Bosworth, by hitting him with a stone tied in a handkerchief. The prosecutor was unable to appear, consequently, the prisoner was remanded for one day.

THEFT.—Toy, a Chinaman, was charged in the Police Court yesterday morning with stealing plums from Miss Yates' garden, near the Gorge. The prisoner, who was caught with a basketfull in his possession, was remanded three days for sentence. Mr. Bishop for the prosecution, Mr. McCreight for the defence.

FOR THE MAINLAND.—The steamer Enterprise, Capt. Swanson, left for the Mainland yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock, with a few passengers and a large amount of freight.

FOR NANAIMO.—The steamer Sir J. Douglas, Capt. Clarke, left for Nanaimo and way ports yesterday morning, at 7 o'clock, with passengers and freight.

CREDIT SALE.—We would remind our readers of the sale of crockeryware by Mr. Lumley Franklin, at 11 o'clock to-day, at his salesroom, Yates street.

POSTPONED.—The Mercantile Library Gift Lottery has been postponed until the 31st of October, for some unaccountable reason.—S. F. Bulletin.

THE bark Edouard cleared yesterday for Utsalady, to load with lumber for China.

The British Consul Divorce Suit.

We have received the following communication from a gentleman in San Francisco, for publication, with reference to an item which appeared in the Colonist about a divorce suit, in which the name of Mr. W. L. Booker, the British Consul at San Francisco was mentioned:

"DIVORCE SUIT.—The British Consul at San Francisco, Mr. Booker, is seeking a divorce from his wife. Mr. Booker was married in England a very few years ago, under what appeared to be happy auspices. In fidelity on the part of the wife is the alleged cause of the suit."—Colonist, Aug. 3, 1870.

EDITOR STANDARD:—The above is a gross and unmitigated libel on a lady who does not exist, and reflecting on a gentleman who enjoys the esteem of all who know him. So far from Mr. Booker having been married in England a very few years ago, it is many years since he was there, and he has never been married!!!

A trap was set to catch some telegraphic thief, mentioning a Mr. Booker with other initials, in connexion with a divorce; but the marriage in England, and the infidelity of the wife, are addenda of the Colonist, for I will defy its editor to show either in the article from which he got his information, or the initials of the British Consul.

Fortunately, Mr. Booker is completely out of the reach of the calumnies of the British Colonist, and the editor and proprietor of that paper beneath Mr. Booker's attention.

A FRIEND.

Frederick the Great and his Father.

Frederick, surnamed the Great, son of Frederick William, was born in January, 1712. It may be safely pronounced that he had received from nature a strong and sharp understanding, and a rare firmness of temper and intensity of will. As to the other parts of his character, it is difficult to say whether they are to be ascribed to nature, or to the strange training which he underwent. The history of his boyhood is painful y interesting. "Oliver Twist" in the Parish Workhouse, "Smike" at Dotheboys Hall, were petted children when compared with this wretched heir-apparent of a crown. The nature of Frederick William was hard and bad, and the habit of exercising arbitrary power had made him frightfully savage. His rage constantly vented itself to right or left in curses and blows. When his Majesty took a walk, every human being fled before him, as if a tiger had broken loose from a menagerie. If he met a lady in the street, he gave her a kick, and told her to go home and mind her brats. If he saw a clergyman staring at the soldiers, he admonished the reverened gentleman to betake himself to study and prayer, and enforced this pious advice by a sound caning, administered on the spot. But it was in his own house that he was most unreasonable and furocious. His palace was hell, and the most execrable of fiends—a cross between Moloch and Puck. His son Frederick and his daughter Wilhelmina, afterward Margravine of Bareuth, were in an especial manner objects of his aversion. His own mind was uncultivated. He despised literature. He hated infidels, Papists and metaphysicians, and did not very well understand in what way they differed from each other. The business of life, according to him, was to drill and be drilled. The recreations suited to a prince, were to sit in a cloud of tobacco-smoke, to sip Swedish beer between the puffs of the pipe, to play back-gammon for three-halfpence a rubber, to kill wild hogs, and to shoot partridges by the thousand. * * * *

The King suspected that his son was inclined to be a heretic of some sort or other, whether Calvanist or Atheist, His Majesty did not very well know. The ordinary malignity of Frekrick William was bad enough He now thought malignity a part of his duty as a Christain man, and all the concience that he had stimulated his hatred. The flute was broken—the French books were sent out of the palace—the Prince was kicked, and cudgeled, and pulled by the hair. At dinner the plates were hurled at his head—sometimes he was restricted to bread and water sometimes he was forced to swallow food so nauseous that he could not keep it on his stomach. Once his father knocked him down, dragged him along the floor to a window, and was with difficulty prevented from strangling him with the cord of the curtain. The Queen, for the crime of not wishing to see her son murdered, was subjected to the grossest indignities. The Princess Wilhelmina, who took her brothers part, was treated almost as ill as Mrs. Browrigg's apprentices. Driven to despair, the unhappy youth tried to run away; then the fury of the old tyrant rose to madness. The Prince was an officer in the army; his fight was therefore desertion, and, in the moral code of Fredrick William, desertion was the highest of all crime. "Desertion," says this royal theologian, in one of his half-crazy letters, "is from hell. It is a work of the children of the devil. No child of God could possibly be guilty of it." An accomplice of the Prince, in spite of the recommendation of a court-martial, was mercilessly put to death. It seemed probable the Prince himself would suffer the same fate It was with difficulty that intercession of the States of Holland, of the Kings of Sweden and Poland, and of the Emperor of Germany, saved the House of Bradenburg from the stain of an unnatural murder After months of cruel suspense Fredrick learned that his life would be spared. He remained, however, long a prisoner; but he was not on that account to be pitied He found in his jailors a tenderness which he had never found in his father; his table was not sumptuous but he had wholesome food in sufficient quantities to appease hunger; he could read the Henriade without being kicked, and play on his flute without having it broken over his head.—Macaulay.

SPECIAL TO THE DAILY STANDARD.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

Utah.

CORRINE, Sept. 5.—Gen. Sherman passed here to-night, westward bound.

A fight occurred this afternoon between T. Hennessey and James Coyle, during which Hennessey drew a knife and stabbed Coyle in the right leg, completely severing the main artery. The wound was attended to at once, but death ensued in a few minutes. The murderer is in custody.

California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—The announcement of a Provisional Government in France has already produced a marked modification in feeling here, and should a Republic be proclaimed the sympathy of the masses of the American citizens here would be in its favor. Those who have been most bitter against the Empire express war sympathies to-day with the foreshadowed Republic. War excitement on the streets is visibly declining.

The North German bark Sina, having been transferred to the San Salvador flag and reported as the Josefa, has sailed for Iquique, Peru, with barley. Other German vessels now in port will follow the same course, our laws not permitting such transfers to our flag.

Of five vessels recently loading with barley here, for Iquique, three were French and two German.

Gen. Sherman is to be presented with the freedom of the city, and rooms have been engaged for him at the Grand Hotel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—Arrived—bark Zerese, Manila; ship Cutwater, Boston; ship Fogota, Caronel; schooner Amada, Agar Nonchagak, with salmon; schooner Legal Tender, loaded with furs; barkentine C. L. Taylor, Shoalwater Bay; ship Reinard, Boston; bark Princess Royal, Victoria; steamer Ajax, Honolulu, with passengers; Wonga Wonga from New Zealand and Australia; schooner Eustance, Kurille Islands, with furs.

No clearances for northern ports.

Europe.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The Daily News says, Julies Favre, now Minister of Foreign Affairs, has already made peace propositions to Prussia. The basis of the proposition is the withdrawal of Germans from French territory. France will give a guarantee that its standing army shall be abolished.

Gambetta has issued a proclamation appointing Elmond Valentine, Prefect of Strasbourg, and for the department of Bazenie country.

All departments of the army and police of Paris are incorporated into the National Guards.

It is reported that Jules Favre has gone forward to meet King William of Prussia.

The capture of McMahon is contradicted.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—Bazaine still maintains his position at Metz.

It is reported that Count Palikao and M. Henry Chevereaux, late Minister of the Interior, are in Belgium, having fled during the crisis pending the declaration of the Republic.

It is rumored that the Italian troops, in strong numbers, under Gen. Cademan, are marching on Rome.

SCTTGART, Sept. 5.—At a public meeting held to-day, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved,—That Germany refuse the mediation or intervention of other powers.

Other resolutions were passed demanding the incorporation of Alsace and Lorraine as a portion of Germany.

LONDON, Sept. 6, 4 p. m.—A correspondent of the Daily News, at Paris, says, at three a. m. on Sunday, he saw the palace at the Tuileries invaded by a mob who tore down the throne and destroyed everything marked with the Imperial arms and other Napoleontic insignia, and carried away and cast into the sea all busts, statues and pictures of Napoleon. Henri Rochefort was borne in triumph to the Hotel de Ville. It seems the soldiers fraternized with the people, all shouting "Vive la France," "Vive Commerce."

PARIS, Sept. 6—evening.—Lowestein's Corps, comprising the German advance, has arrived at Nancy, on the march to Paris.

The corps of General Verorey has reached Loten on a general movement. The corps is intact and falling back in good order.

Specials to the Evening Telegraph, dated London, Sept. 6, say the Prince Imperial reached London this afternoon.

BAUSSELS, Sept. 6.—The Prince Imperial left Hanover for England. The Empress Eugenie arrived in Belgium on Sunday.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—McMahon lies dead at Naruntin, Belgium.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—It is now positively asserted that the Empress left Paris on Sunday, going through Belgium to remain with the Emperor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Special correspondent of the Tribune says: The following is a correct list of Provisional Government and leading names of the National Defense Government: Emmanel Arago, Crimeaux, Jules Favre, Jules Forry, Gambette, Garnier, Payes, Goris Biscone, Reieten Martin, Picard, Rochefort, Jules Simon.

Ministry is as follows: Minister Foreign Affairs, Jules Favre; Minister Justice, Cremiaux; Minister Interior, Leon Gambetta; Minister Finance, Ernest Picard; Superintendent Public Works, Pierre Avran; Minister Commerce, Joseph Magin; Superintendent Public Instruction, Jules Simon; Minister Marine, Martin; Foreign Minister of War, Le Beuff. Trochu is also named as President of the Committee.

LONDON, Sept. 5th—Evening.—The Bavarian contingent, under vote of the Rothsaimusen, has left Sedan, which is now held by the Prussians. Forces of the former will act as an escort to the French prisoners, who are estimated at 90,000.

The death of Gen. Failley is denied.

Eastern States.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The Commercial Advertizer says: President Grant has instructed Secretary Fish to issue a proclamation recognizing the New French Republic.

SELLING OFF AT HALF PRICE the entire stock of British Columbia photographs, unequalled for their variety and quality; also 1,000 doz. of Indian Cartes de Visite, which will be sold without reserve. Mr. Daily having disposed of his business to the Messrs. Green Bro's offers the above at half the original price during the present month only, and all persons indebted to Mr. D. are requested to call and pay their accounts on or before the 20th inst. se6 1m
